WHO WE ARE:
The CEP is the premier regional health care ethics education network in western Pennsylvania serving the surrounding tristate area. We provide long-term, continuing ethics education for a diversity of professionals, including nurses, physicians, attorneys, social workers, administrators, and others interested in health care ethics. Established in 1990, the CEP is a collaborative effort of the University of Pittsburgh Department of Medicine, Division of General Internal Medicine, and the University of Pittsburgh Center for Bioethics and Health Law.

WHAT WE PROVIDE:
The CEP provides a cost-effective, personalized educational program that allows professionals and their organization to develop and maintain an awareness and expertise in clinical health care ethics.

ABOUT THE PROGRAM:
Education is offered within a three-year cycle and is comparable in content, breadth, and depth to the training offered by graduate degree programs in health care ethics, but with the advantage of greater flexibility and unique personalization. Our program is successful in:
- Educating members to become ethics resource persons within their organization.
- Assisting members in designing and implementing an ethics education plan to meet the specific needs of their organization.

Education is presented through a variety of formats to best match the needs of our members:
- Weekend Conference: Held in the fall of each year, this intensive, yet informal, three-day conference includes faculty from local universities and national scholars.

- Seminar Series: Throughout the year, members attend four full-day seminar sessions.
- Webinars: Distance learning sessions are offered several times a year.
- Online Teaching Modules: Provides members with the tools to teach the basic concepts of health care ethics to staff within their organization.
- Onsite Programming: Up to six hours of targeted education designed to meet the needs of the organization and help expand ethics awareness throughout. This can include educating staff, ethics committees, or customized skill-building activities for ethics consultants.

ABOUT MEMBERSHIP:
CEP membership is open to anyone who recognizes the importance of health care ethics. Members come from all professional backgrounds, including those associated with acute care institutions, long-term facilities, home care providers, health care insurers, law firms, private practices, and educational institutions.

The most important qualification for any prospective member is the recognition of the importance of health care ethics to his/her work and professional development.
