ENGLIT 1390: Contemporary Film

LECTURE and SCREENING: Tuesdays and Thursdays, 6:00 p.m. to 9:50 p.m. in LAWREN 207

This course will explore the contemporary moment in international cinema in terms of film styles, movements, production, distribution, and reception through the related (but different) concepts of new media, globalization, transnationalism, race, sexuality, gender, and popular culture. The films we will study include commercial cinema, independent film, international film, digital and video production, and local/populist film work. We will investigate various sites in which contemporary film circulates, such as film festivals, the Internet, academia, the museum, and commercial theaters. We will also consider relationships between contemporary film and alternative forms of visual culture.

Required Texts

(Available at the University Book Store)
2) All required and recommended course readings will be available for you to download from Blackboard.

Blackboard

You can access the course website at http://courseweb.pitt.edu where you will be able to read class-related announcements, make contributions to the discussion board, and download the syllabus, course readings, and information about the assignments. Lecture notes will not be available online. You can also use this website to email your classmates.

Occasionally, I will contact you via email to update you about your attendance and performance in class and to make announcements. The course website will send out emails only to your Pitt email account. Therefore, if you do not use your Pitt email account, please use the following instructions to have your Pitt email forwarded to the account you use regularly:

1) Go to http://accounts.pitt.edu
2) Log in with your username and password and click “connect”
3) On the Management menu, click on “Edit forwarding addresses”
4) Enter your forwarding address(es) (the email address you use regularly) in the box(es) and click “OK”
COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Attendance Policy:
2 late arrivals = 1 absence
2 partial presences = 1 absence (for example, if you leave before or after the film screening)
2 unexcused absences = course grade lowered by one full letter grade
3 unexcused absences = F
4 excused or unexcused absences = F
Excused absences: you must turn in a doctor's note or other valid explanation in writing within a week of your absence. I will not accept excuses for absences via email.

I will keep track of attendance based on your signature in the sign-up sheet that will be circulated at the beginning of class. It is your responsibility to remember to sign in when the sheet is sent around. This will be your only valid proof that you were in class.

Assignments and Grade Breakdown:

READING
You will read approximately 25-50 pages before you come to each class.

1) Reading Journal (20%): This assignment will test your reading preparation for each class meeting. You will bring to each class two copies of a one-page single-spaced typewritten response to the readings scheduled for that class.

In your journal:
* Summarize the main ideas of the assigned readings.
* Make associative connections between the ideas in the readings and the films and/or other readings.
* Respond to the readings.

Late assignments will not be accepted unless you have a formal medical or other legitimate excuse in writing. I will pick up your assignments in the first 10 minutes of class. Therefore, I strongly urge you to come to class on time. There will be 11 journals in all and grades will be on a 10 point scale with 10=A+; 9.5=A; 9=A-; etc. down to 5=F.

Important Note: If you do all 11 journals, I will include only the best 8 for your final grade. If you do 10 or fewer, I will average all journals for your grade. This means that if you do all of the reading journals, you will be taking the opportunity to figure out what is expected in this assignment and to improve your grade.

2) Class Discussion (10%):
Your journal will be the basis for your contribution to class discussion. If I don't hear your voice in class, I will call on you to speak up or to read from your journal.
ACTIVE FILM VIEWING

You cannot watch films in this class merely for entertainment. This means that I will expect you to take screening notes and be able to speak in class and write in your journal with detailed examples from your notes.

3) Film Presentation and online discussion (10%)
You and another student will research one of the films on our syllabus. You will jointly make a brief (5-10 min.) presentation to the class before the screening and hand out a set of discussion questions to the class. You will then lead an online discussion on the film during the week after the screening. Each member of your group will be graded individually.

4) Discussion Board Film Posts (15%)
Participate in the course discussion board at least six times during the term. If you crowd all of your comments in the last weeks of the term, your grade will be lowered. You must post substantive comments backed by detailed observation/analysis for which you can draw on your screening notes. In other words, you are required to share short analyses of each session’s film online. Or, you can choose to respond to someone else’s post with a counter-analysis of your own. I will grade your posts on the same 10-point scale as your reading journals. One sentence posts will not be graded.

If you post more than six times, I will take your six best grades. I will let you know your grade within a week after you have posted it.

RESEARCH AND WRITING

5) Peer Presentation (15%)
Since contemporary film culture is always in process and all published scholarship is always slightly behind, you will contribute to the scholarship on this area in a class workshop in which you will all present your work to each other. With one other student you will prepare a 20-minute presentation on an area of contemporary film culture from a list of topics that we will generate in class together. You will also make a handout for the class and turn in a detailed outline of your presentation.

6) Midterm and Final Take-Home Exams (15% and 15%; 30% total)
For each take-home exam, you will answer assigned questions based on readings and films on the syllabus. I may also ask you to apply concepts learned in class to films of your choice.
Opportunities for Extra Credit

I will not make any special arrangements for extra credit. The responsibility for earning a grade is yours and all the information you need to do well in this class is in this syllabus.

All aspects of your course grade will depend on your careful and regular reading in advance of each class meeting. You will not do well on the research and writing assignments if you don’t do the readings. Towards the end of the semester there will be no way for you to make up a poor grade in these areas.

Academic Integrity

Students in this course will be expected to comply with the University of Pittsburgh’s policy on academic integrity. Cheating/plagiarism will not be tolerated. Everything you write in your exams and papers must be your own work, unless you quote someone else’s work and provide full citations. This includes material you may have found online. Students suspected of violating the University of Pittsburgh Policy on Academic Integrity, noted below from the Senate Committee on Tenure and Academic Freedom reported to the Senate Council, will be required to participate in the outlined procedural process as initiated by the instructor. A minimum sanction of a zero score or F for the paper or exam will be imposed.

The integrity of the academic process requires fair and impartial evaluation on the part of faculty and honest academic conduct on the part of students. To this end, students are expected to conduct themselves at a high level of responsibility in the fulfillment of the course of their study. It is the corresponding responsibility of faculty to make clear to students those standards by which students will be evaluated, and the resources permissible for use by students during the course of their study and evaluation. The educational process is perceived as a joint faculty-student enterprise which will perform involve professional judgment by faculty and may involve – without penalty- reasoned exception by students to the data or views offered by faculty. Senate Committee on Tenure and Academic Freedom, February 1974

Disability Accommodations

If you have a disability for which you are or may be requesting an accommodation, you are encouraged to contact both your instructor and Disability Resources and Services, 216 William Pitt Union, 648-7890 or 383-7355 (TTY) as early as possible in the term.

If you have any questions or concerns about the course or your performance, feel free to talk to me, e-mail me, or stop by during my office hours.
ENGLIT 1390 Class Schedule

Most readings will refer to the film you watched in the previous class. Therefore, we will end class with the film and discuss it in the following class session. During the last four sessions the course readings will refer to the film(s) scheduled for the same class session for which they are assigned.
