University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown (UPJ) 11th Annual Laurel Highlands Undergraduate Psychology Conference

April 12, 2008
9 a.m.–3 p.m.
UPJ (Blackington Hall)

The Laurel Highlands Undergraduate Psychology Conference provides a forum for undergraduate students in psychology programs across the tristate area to present their research to their fellow students and faculty members in psychology. This year’s keynote speaker is Nicholas DiFonzo, PhD, professor of the Rochester Institute of Technology Department of Psychology. He will speak on “Rumor Accuracy: Ferreting Facts or Fashioning Policy?”

www.pitt.edu/~provost/undergrad_research.html