I. REQUIRED TEXTS:

II. RECOMMENDED TEXTS:

III. TEXTS ON RUSSO-SOVIEC CINEMA IN HILLMAN LIBRARY:
Many of the texts relevant to post-Stalin Russian cinema are located in Hillman Library. For their individual research projects, students should consult the online bibliography for Russo-Soviet cinema at http://www.pitt.edu/~slavic/video/cinema_biblio.html and then check Pittcat for the holdings of specific titles in Hillman Library.

IV. READING, SCREENING, and WRITING ASSIGNMENTS:
The Schedule of Assignments provides an itemization of screening and writing assignments for the entire semester. With the exception of the first meeting of the seminar, there will be no films screened in class. Instead, students will be assigned three films to view in the following week and the first half of each meeting of the seminar (two hours) will be a detailed examination and discussion of each film.

Reading assignments are more loosely defined: students must read in their entirety the Prokhorov and Woll texts on the cinema of the Thaw by the beginning of week three of the seminar; the Farraday by the beginning of week six; the Horton/Brashinsky and Lawton (Before the Fall) by post-Stalinist Russian Cinema: week nine; the second Lawton by week twelve. Photocopies of articles distributed in class must be read by the next meeting of the seminar. Any student not present in class when photocopied materials are distributed must obtain a copy of the materials from another student before the next scheduled meeting of the class and is responsible for that reading. Since students will receive a number of grades for each meeting of the course (preparation, participation, and quality of written work), students are encouraged not to attend any session for which they have not thoroughly prepared. Any suspicion that students are not keeping up with the reading will result in a a bombardment of quizzes that will lower grades.

Screening assignments: students are required to view all assigned films prior to the next meeting of the class. Students should arrange a convenient time and location for the assigned screening. The instructor will provide viewing copies of the assigned films for the scheduled screenings. All films must be returned to the instructor immediately after the screening to ensure that other students will be able to view the film in time. Several of the films scheduled screenings do not have English subtitles (marked with a double asterisk in the Schedule of Assignments). Consequently, students who do not speak Russian should arrange to view these films with a Russian speaker to provide a voice-over translation.

Writing assignments: there will be weekly writing assignments and students must submit all writing assignments on the date due. All assignments must be submitted in a sufficient number of copies for each member of the course. With the exception of the final research paper (see below), all writing assignments should be limited to one or two printed pages maximum. There are three types of writing assignments for the course:

(i) “viewing questions and rationalization”: students must compile a list of viewing questions for the assigned films. Viewing questions should both assist and guide students in making sense of the film. The rationalization for the viewing questions must state explicitly (and elaborate) the formal and content considerations that are central to the film and that are embedded in the viewing questions.

(ii) “trope assignments”: students must choose a specific trope (positive hero, Party-mindedness, class-mindedness, people-mindedness, idea-mindedness, monumentality, historical inevitability, socialist competition, bureaucracy, the family, labor, etc.) and identify—on the basis of specific sequences in specific films—the changes that the trope undergoes as it moves from one socio-political period to another.

(iii) “research paper assignments”: students must submit an abstract (maximum two printed paragraphs) of their proposed research paper on 16 October to every member of the class. All students (as well as the instructor) must comment on and make suggestions concerning the abstract. Students must submit a revised version of the abstract together with a preliminary list of relevant works on 30 October; an annotated bio-filmography (and expanded list of relevant works) on 13 November; and an outline of the research paper with a finalized list of relevant works on 27 November; and a final research paper on 11 December.

V. ABSENCE AND ATTENDANCE:
Students are expected to attend all classes. Absence due to personal illness, as well as illness or death in the family, must be documented. Absent students are required to obtain all in-class handouts and class notes for the session they missed from another student in the class; all missing assignments must be made up. All unexcused absences will receive a grade of “UA” for that session. Three such unexcused absences will result in an “F” for the course.

VI. QUIZZES:
There will be a number of unannounced quizzes during the semester on assigned readings, screenings, and material covered in the course. No quizzes will be re-scheduled and no make-up quizzes will be given.

VII. RESEARCH PAPER:
All students must submit a final research paper (20-30 pages) on Monday 11 December. Topics for the research paper must be discussed with the instructor before beginning work on the project. Since the first “research paper assignment” is due on 16 October, students are encouraged to begin work immediately in choosing and researching a topic. All research papers must conform in layout, documentation, and works cited to the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers (6th edition).

VIII. EVALUATION AND GRADES:
Grades will be calculated using the following percentages: final research paper (30%), preparation and participation (10%), quizzes (10%), viewing questions and rationalizations (15%), trope assignments (20%), and research paper assignments (15%). Students are encouraged to meet with the instructor periodically to review their grades and progress in the course.
