Dr. Fayaz joins Hand Lab

Hangama C. Fayaz, MD, joined our Hand Lab as a Postdoctoral Associate after completing a Traveling Clinician Award in the Harvard Orthopedics Combined Program, and a Research Fellowship at the Department of Orthopedic Surgery at Brigham and Women's Hospital. Dr. Fayaz received her MD from Heinrich Heine University in Duesseldorf, Germany. She received award, twice, from the German Society of Orthopedic and Rheumatology. With the award, she completed her thesis on the stability of metacarpophalangeal joint after joint implantations at Mayo Clinic. With our Hand Lab, Dr. Fayaz is enthusiastic about researching on carpal tunnel syndrome and sports-related hand/wrist injuries.
